The Basketball Game By: Kaylee

Chapter 1 by Kaylee Baggerly

I could feel the ground vibrating. I'm by a black line and players on the sides. The ball bounces and spins. Five seconds left. Behind by one point. Championship on the line. Two more games after this one. This season, I haven't missed a single free throw. I know right. Okay, back to the game. This game picked if I was gonna play next year. I look around and see nothing but worried faces. In the net with a showstopping sound. Cheers.

I remember from the start, how people would say I'm too short to play. That there was no hope. I did everything that the taller kids did. I can also do more than them. After the first game I had sixty points, twenty assists, eleven steals, and twenty-one rebounds. That's when some of the team changed their mind and believed in me.

My ponytail moves behind my head. Water rolls down my face. Tied game.
